Merry Christmas from SWSL

'Twas the night before Christmas at Southwind Senior Living, all the residents were joyful, happy, and giving. Maria had hung all decorations with care, while each of the ladies had all done their hair, for they all knew that Santa soon would be there. Jill V. had been busy in the activity kitchen all day, baking cookies for Santa, to eat as he may. That night the residents were nestled all snug in their beds, while visions of Bingo Cards danced in their heads. And I in my office, and Laurie by my side, going over bills, "Gosh!" it was late, we both could have cried! When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter, was it Miranda with the Laundry cart, or did Brett or J.P. fall off a ladder? Away to the door we ran really fast, Laurie yelled, "Jill S, did you see that strange shadow that had just passed?!!!" The moon shone bright on the pond near the road, the weather was great, just a tad bit cold! The ducks as well as the goose were all comfy asleep in their nest; they must have been taking a long winter's rest. When what to our sleepy eyes would appear, the big Southwind bus, "Oh, Dear"!!! With a handsome driver, we had to stop and pause. Who could it be? Was it Santa Clause! There were no reindeer at all in sight; the bus was full of residents helping Santa tonight. They danced and they sang as Santa did call, the smiles on their faces showed they were having a ball. Through the front door and down each hall, delivering presents to one and all. Not a sound did we make as we watched in awe, next thing we knew, in walked Santa Clause. We covered our eyes and then ducked down, as he strolled through the halls without making a sound. He was dressed all in red from his head to his toes; he had chubby cheeks and a rosy red nose. Holding his list, he checked it twice, looking for those who were naughty or nice. Oh to his amazement he soon realized, everyone at Southwind Senior Living would be getting a surprise. All the residents and staff had been full of goodness and cheer, just as they had been year after year. As quick as they came, away they did go, while they entered the bus they shouted, "Ho, Ho, Ho!" With a turn of the key and a shift of the gears, I heard him exclaim, Merry Christmas to All and a Very Happy New Year!

Poetry Writing: Thanksgiving Love

Recently, SWSL undertook a new activity: poetry writing. Poetry therapy is becoming more popular because it's a great way to connect people when you write or read poetry in a group.

There are great benefits of reading back a poem someone has written; it helps with self-esteem, empowerment, and feelings of contribution. The poetry theme chosen this month was Thanksgiving. Please enjoy the following poem, titled Thanksgiving Love, written by James Bordelon, Martha Bordelon, Shirley Cassidy, Mildred Landry, and Louise Web, with the help of Jill Villejoin.

Family, food, fun, and love,
 Every November we're thankful for blessings from above.
 With each changing autumn leaf,
 Cooler weather reaches us each.
 Our family's embrace warms our souls,
 And good friends play an important role.
 Jim Beam, wine, or beer,
 Whatever your choice to bring you cheer.
 The smell of turkey and dressing fills the air,
 And sounds of Macy's parade adds the perfect flare.
 The afternoon brings tree trimming and football,
 And the kids start smelling like puppy dogs.
 But even after the smell of onions and casseroles start to fade away,
 The gratitude for loved ones remain because of Thanksgiving Day.

Happy Birthday

November Birthdays:
 Sherlene Robichaux,
 Rena LeJeune,
 Barbara Geesey, &
